

Nicole's areas of expertise are as diverse as her qualifications in Anthropology, Politics and Planning. She has considerable expertise in Natural Resources Management (NRM), with a detailed understanding of the interrelationship between the planning system, NRM and NRM related legislation. She is also skilled in social policy development, community and agency consultation/ facilitation, evaluation and community profiling. Excellent project management skills underpin her adaptability, together with a flair for 'distilling' large volumes of information and complex issues in a way that clearly influence project outcomes. Nicole's skills and experience reflect her personal commitment to social and environmental justice and delivering projects that are grounded in these values.
